Phoenix Women in Leadership Series Features Susan Cordts PRESIDENT AND CEO OF ADAPTIVE TECHNOLOGIES, INC SHARES INSIGHTS

Phoenix, AZ – April 14, 2008 – The Phoenix Women in Leadership offers a rewarding experience for women business leaders at their free seminar, Path to Prosperity, on Wednesday, April 30, 2008, from 2:00 to 6:00 pm at the Arizona Biltmore Resort.

Susan Cordts, President and CEO of Adaptive Technologies, Inc. (ATi) will provide the event's keynote presentation. Ms. Cordts heads up an insightful organization that empowers business leaders through advanced predictive analytics and technology to make better decisions. She provides the visionary management and operational oversight to ATi's global enterprise headquartered in Phoenix, Arizona. Susan's extensive leadership experience spans across industries from healthcare to technology.

"Our Phoenix Women in Leadership: Path to Prosperity event is an inspirational event and an opportunity to network and learn valuable insights from fellow women leaders in business," said Amy Fowler, event host and Managing Partner at Lewis & Fowler.

The Phoenix Women in Leadership series provides a unique forum to collaborate with valley women leaders and share experiences, accomplishments and success tips. The program also includes a panel presentation with local leaders answering questions and providing valuable expertise. The panelists in addition to Ms. Cordts are Maura Shaffer, Vice President of E-Business for Honeywell Aerospace, Customer & Product Support, Pat Little-Upah, CEO of Banner Behavioral Health Hospital and Shelly Esque, Global Director of Corporate Affairs Intel Corporation.

The Phoenix Women in Leadership series is hosted by Lewis & Fowler and CSC (Computer Sciences Corporation) and sponsored by Microsoft. To register for the event, call 602-776-3648. Space is limited. RSVPs must be received by April 23, 2008.
